Overview

February 7, 1950 (Tuesday)

- The United States gave diplomatic recognition to the newly established French-supported governments in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia with the aim to help "the establishment of stable, non-Communist governments in areas adjacent to Communist China".
- Died: D. K. Broster, 72, British historical novelist

Today David K. Niles wrote a letter to the President warning:

that the racial imbalance which had for so long frustrated equal treatment and opportunity for Negroes in the Army would continue despite the Army's new assignment policy unless the Army was able to raise the quality of its black enlistees.

Back in 1943, Congressman Fred Bradley accused Niles of having Communist connections, and later he was linked to the KGB. [\[note\]](#)
